I am not ashamed that I have been occupied with were our ranks fuller, so as to leave me leisure for all that I want to say, especially to dear Elizabeth Pease, whose is to us a household word, & watchword too. Wendell showed me your letter to him about C. Wright The importance of a new-organiza-what Wendell tells me is excellent though he has not yet sent it to me. We shall be true of a good market for this autograph of John Newton. Tell me what in your estimation & Mrs. Wightsons it ought to bring. Perhaps we could get more for it than your estimate.

Do let me know. When I take my pen to write to you I can say nothing but thanks, so great are the obligations you continually lay on under. How nobly George Thompson met the Committee even on their own showing!
If he had not been indignant at their meanness he had been blame.
We understand thoroughly here what such sort of beings mean when they see a flash of divine indignation & report it as "a state of great excitement." Tell George Thompson we often hope to hear of him in the same state.

It is a state of Grace, we think.
You are mistaken in thinking that the Standard is moved to Boston. There is only a change in the editorship. We are as high cheer & courage "the full I hope misnamed follows" since the American Society has, with the deliberation of entire convention, come up to the standpoint of the individual pioneers, not to swear allegiance to Constitution which is a guaranty of slavery.
See letter of Francis Jackson, renuncing his office of Justice of the Peace, for a course & complete argument.
If we can keep the Standard afloat now, we shall do well & the cause will triumph. By the economy in editing, I hope & trust we may.
I have ordered a copy to be sent to you. Tell me if you get it regularly.
Receive it as a token, however slight, of our affectionate regard. ever yours M.W. Chapman
